A patch test involves placing a small amount of product against the skin before an initial appointment to monitor for a local reaction. Keune products do not contain PPD, so although a reaction is unusual and less likely, there is a chance of an unknown allergy. A patch test is not mandatory, but is advisable if you believe there is a chance you could be allergic to products used during your appointment. A patch test does not guarantee that a client will not have a reaction.

Would you like a patch test?

- Yes, I consent to the patch test.
- No, I waive the patch test.
